The Ninefold Coil of Ananta Sesha

They named it the Black Sun, for they could not bear to name what truly slept below. A symbol etched in circles of silence, turning not with day or night, but with the sigh of existence itself. Yet it was not a star. Nor flame. Nor god. It was Ananta Sesha, the Nine-Headed Serpent, whose coils encircled the root of

Irontomb

The Irontomb is not a resting place, but a verdict—a monument forged for those who defied time, fate, or the will of the world itself. It stands deep beneath the fractured surface of the old realm, a subterranean cathedral where rusted pillars rise like the ribs of a dead colossus, and iron dust floats through the air like

The Ninefold Coil of Ananta Sesha

They named it the Black Sun, for they could not bear to name what truly slept below.
A symbol etched in circles of silence, turning not with day or night, but with the sigh of existence itself.

Yet it was not a star.
Nor flame.
Nor god.

Reborn with new faces.
New pain.
Old sins repeating in forgotten tongues.

Those who speak of "salvation" do not know:
There is no Nirvana while Sesha breathes.
There is only the cycle.
And the silence between coils.

Mereka menamainya Matahari Hitam, karena mereka tidak sanggup menamai apa yang sesungguhnya tertidur di bawah sana.
Sebuah simbol yang terukir dalam lingkaran keheningan, tidak berputar bersama siang atau malam, tetapi bersama desahan keberadaan itu sendiri.

Namun itu bukanlah bintang.
Bukan pula api.
Bukan pula dewa.

Itu adalah Ananta Sesha, Ular Berbuntut Sembilan,
yang lilitan tubuhnya mengelilingi akar dunia,
yang nafasnya adalah gelombang awal dan akhir segala sesuatu.

Setiap kali dunia bernyanyi terlalu keras,
Sesha akan bergerak.
Bukan dalam amarah—tetapi dalam ritme.
Detak jantung kosmik.
Kenangan yang runtuh ke dalam dirinya sendiri.

Di dalam lilitan tak berujungnya terikat dua kekuatan:
Niskala, Ketidiana yang Tak Terlihat—dan Pandemonium, Api Hitam yang melahap kenangan dan jiwa.
